Dear Bologna Lab Colleagues,

I am happy to wish you welcome to the 10th Bologna Lab organized by UNICA. The topics that will be discussed at the meeting are of vital interest for the endeavors that the Bologna Process stands for:

‘Attracting students from overseas’, ‘UNICA projects and initiatives: bridging and boosting’, ‘Consequences of the Leuven Declaration: learning from each other’, ‘Learning outcomes: The Stockholm experience’ and ‘Developing the role of education in a fully-functioning knowledge triangle – a priority of the Swedish Presidency’.

The programme is available on the UNICA Website: <http://www.unica-network.eu/bologna-lab.html>

In many of our countries the structural reforms are in place. It is important then to have the long-term goals in mind and continuously work in order to make the reforms real quality reforms. These aspects will be taken up in Stockholm and there will be time for discussion and exchange of information and opinions, and also for social life.

Of course I want you to come to Stockholm so that the Bologna Lab will be really representative of the UNICA network. By the end of November Stockholm can be quite dark (the polar circle is no too far) but it can also be lit up by snow and really exotic.

If you come on Sunday 29th you will have many choices as a tourist. There is an important Dalí exhibition on at the Museum of Modern Art, the National Gallery exhibits the romantic painter Caspar David Friedrich, and the Wasa ship dwells in its museum.

So I hope you will come to Stockholm and join the UNICA Bologna Lab.

Welcome to Stockholm University!

Best wishes

Johan Falk
