How we support: Collaboration, Co-Production and Citizen Science

- 1. Individual Fellows with experience in these areas, along with our new Regional Fellows, come together within WIE as part of a Collaboration and Co-Production Learning Circle to discuss and deliver strategic recommendations on improving pan-University practice.
- 2. The Collaboration and Co-Production Learning Circle, works with the WIE team and external independent reviewers, to run the Collaboration and Co-Production Fund, supporting projects that seek to build new community relationships leading to research grant applications and/ or collaborative Public engagement events
- 3. WIE Fellows also run a Peer Review Learning Circle, which offers peer review of research grants applications with substantial Co-Production and Citizen science elements to help improve grant capture.
- 4. The WIE Team supports the organization of public events co-produced by the University and community partners, and then, in subsequent years, targets particular community relationships to foster with further support for events and joint projects.
